MUST MAINTAIN POULTRY STOCK IN THIS STATE

Advice Given to Raisers at Field Meeting at Storrs.

Poultry men and women from all parts of the state attended the Poultry Association's annual field meeting held at the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs this week. Paul P. Ives of New Haven and Professor William F. Kirkpatrick of Storrs, members of the food department's special poultry committee, explained to the association at its opening session the need for maintaining the present supply of poultry stock in Connecticut and told how the good offices of the Poultry association were needed in organizing ten-hen clubs throughout the state.

Professor W. L. Slate and Gerald Waldo urged poultry farmers in New England to grow and utilize their own grains. J. C. Hempel, manager of the Branford Farms at Groton, thoroughly mystified his audience in telling about the use of automatic feeders and electric lights in hen houses at Branford. In the winter months, when the days were short, Mr. Hempel said they could get only one-half as many eggs from their hens without lights as they could when the houses were artificially lighted about five o'clock in the afternoon and the birds kept up until nine at night. Then the lights went out and the birds got up at five in the morning by electric light and started to work. Professor J. C. Graham of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, Walter B. Farmer of New Hampshire, Riggs B. Hicks, president of the National Poultry Federation, Professor Guy C. Smith of the Connecticut Agricultural college, and Howard W. Selby of Springfield, Mass., all discussed from various angles the subject of co-operative marketing and organized buying.

At the afternoon session H. G. Monroe, who is actively in charge of the egg laying contest at Storrs, gave the association some facts he had found in laying more than 160,000 eggs each year. Mr. Monroe exhibited a very simple but ingenious device for grading eggs. Apparently it was nothing more than a piece of plain 1x2 inch stock with a dozen 1-2 inch holes bored in it. The eggs were put into these holes and then the operator sighted along the stick to see whether or not the eggs were the same size. Roy E. Jones discussed in detail the plan of the slacker hen campaign that is being conducted jointly by the Committee of Food Supply and the Agricultural college.

Bulletin's Pattern Service

A SMART DESIGN.
This will make a fine tailored waist in linen, madras, batiste, lawn or maine, also for satin, silk, crepe de chine, faille, reps, poplin, tulle or gabardine. One could make the vest of contrasting material. With the waist of colored satin, silk or voile, the vest and collar could be of organdy or crepe.

The pattern is cut in seven sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches, bust measure. Size 34 will require 3 yards of 38-inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

Order through The Bulletin Company, Pattern Dept., Norwich, Conn.

DAINTY AND BECOMING NEGLEEES.
Figure one, dotted Swiss, lawn, batiste, organdy, China silk, washable satin, albatross and cashmere are all nice for this model. The sleeve and waist are cut in one, and gathered to the shaped skirt portions.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: Small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; extra large, 44-46 inches, bust measure. Size medium will require 2 1/2 yards of 38-inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

Order through The Bulletin Company, Pattern Dept., Norwich, Conn.

FARMERETTES IN '76.
Women of the Revolutionary Period Were Tillers of the Soil.

"Nothing new under the sun," wrote Solomon. Farmerettes have been made much of by press writers as a new institution of war times. But there were plenty of them in 1776. In its column, "Current Topics of the Town," the Philadelphia Public Ledger prints this quotation from the New England Chronicle of the date Sept. 5, 1776: "Philadelphia—Since the departure of the able-bodied men from the forks of the Brandywine, in Chester County, in the service of their country, the patriotic young women, to prevent the

A High Compliment.
The Salvation Army has been abolished in Germany by government order, which is as high a compliment as the German government could pay to the Salvation Army.—Springfield Union.

Preferred Masterly Advances.
It is a masterly retreat. But, as for the Allies, they have had enough of masterly retreats. The Germans are welcome to the exclusive enjoyment of them.—Springfield Republican.

Change of View.
For the first time the Germans are talking peace in the hour of defeat. Hitherto they have only spoken of ending the conflict when everything was going their way.—San Francisco Chronicle.

No Use for Them.
Germany no longer uses tablecloths or napkins, but that is scarcely a hardship. The Germans never did find out what they were for.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Have Missed the Way.
The German General Staff thought it knew the road to Paris, but it seems to have missed the way.—Kansas City Star.

A Greater Menace.
Russian anarchy may yet prove a greater menace to Germany than Russian belligerency.—New York World.

We often hear of a middle aged man; but never of a middle aged woman. A woman is either young or old.

Financial Situation Clarified.
Chief reason why men at 50 do not have an income from investment sufficient to make them independent is because when they were younger they valued other things as more important than an income from investments.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Difficult Job for Ludendorff.
The Allies have found an impregnable defense with which to meet Von Hindenburg's irresistible attack, and it is up to the latter's successor to invent a new one.—Portland Oregonian.

Socialism and the Poor.
A ham in Petrograd now costs about $300. Thus does socialism administer to the wants of the poor.—Los Angeles Times.

The Young Stay-at-Home.
And how the young fellow who wigged out of going to war is going to envy the chap who fought and covered himself with glory in the second battle of the Marne! Yes, and even the boy who died there for the freedom of the world!—Cincinnati Commercial.

Call for a Substitute.
A Cuban has invented a material made of palm fiber to be used as a substitute for cedar in cigar boxes. It is now up to somebody to invent a substitute for the hay in cigars.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Even if a girl meets a second lieutenant in the dark, she can always remember exactly the color of his eyes and hair.—Florida Times-Union.

Billiard room for convalescent American soldiers, operated by American Red Cross in the Casino at Vittel, the famous French watering place. This is one of the many rest and comfort rooms, which the American Red Cross is operating to give our sick and wounded men all possible comfort and pleasure.
